BIOGRAPHIES

DAVID GORDON (Writer, Director) performed in the companies of James Waring and Yvonne Rainer in the 1960's. He showed his work at the Living Theatre and in the first Judson Church performances. In the early 1970's he was a founding member of the improvisational ensemble Grand Union. In 1978 he formalized the process of making work for varying numbers of performers by establishing the Pick Up Company as a legal entity. Since that time a core company has been established with whom he rehearses and tours regularly. Mr. Gordon has been commissioned to make work for dance companies in the United States and Europe, including the American Ballet Theatre, Dance Theater of Harlem, Groupe de Recherché Choreographique de l'Opera de Paris, the Rambert Dance Company, and Mikhail Baryshnikov's White Oak Dance Project. His work was seen at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in 1984 when he constructed the movement for the NEXT WAVE Festival's presentation of the Philip Glass work The Photographer. The Pick Up Company has since been presented in the NEXT WAVE Festival in both 1986 and 1988. Mr. Gordon is a Guggenheim Fellow (1981 and 1987), has served as a panelist for the Dance Program of the New York State Council on the Arts and Panelist and Chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts' Dance Program Panel. In 1984, he received a New York Performance Award (Bessie) for Sustained Choreographic Achievement. Mr. Gordon's dance/music/theater work, The Mysteries and What's So Funny? was honored in 1991 with a Bessie Award and in 1992 with an Obie Award. Mr. Gordon is profiled in Sally Banes' book Terpsichore in Sneakers and by Arlene Croce in the November 29, 1982 issue of The New Yorker. In May 1980, David Gordon's work was included in the Dance in America broadcast Beyond the Mainstream, and he is one of seven artists featured in Michael Blackwood's film Making Dances. His ten minute TV videotapes produced by the Pick Up Company have been shown by Channel 4/Great Britain. They were selected for the 1984 Olympic Arts Festival and were aired in August 1986 on an episode on the national PBS series Alive from Off Center devoted to Gordon's work. In October of 1987 David Gordon's Made in U.S.A. aired nationally on WNET/Great Performances and later received three Emmy nominations. The program featured Mikhail Baryshnikov and Valda Setterfield in three of Gordon's work for the Pick Up Company and American Ballet Theatre. In 1989 the Company completed a video work titled My Folks which was aired on BBC-TV in October of that year. A new work for television, Punch and Judy Get Divorced was created in 1992 and received its broadcast premiere on KTCA/Alive TV in June. The script for The Mysteries and What's So Funny? is being published this year by Grove Press in an anthology of contemporary American plays edited by Michael Feingold.

PHILIP GLASS (COMPOSER), born in Baltimore on January 31, 1937. He discovered music in his father's radio repair shop. In addition to servicing radios, Ben Glass carried a line of records and, when certain ones sold poorly, he would take them home and play them for his three children, trying to discover why they didn't appeal to customers. These happened to be recordings of the great chamber works, and the future composer rapidly became familiar with Beethoven quartets, Schubert sonatas, Shostakovich symphonies and other music then considered "offbeat." Glass began the violin at six and became serious about music when he took up the flute at eight. But by the time he was 15, he had become frustrated with the limited flute repertory as well as with musical life in post-war Baltimore, During his second year in high school, he applied for admission to the University of Chicago, passed and, with his parents' encouragement, moved to Chicago where he supported himself with part-time jobs waiting tables and loading airplanes at airports. He majored in mathematics and philosophy, and in off hours practiced piano and concentrated on such composers as Ives and Webern. At 19, Glass graduated from the University of Chicago and, determined to become a composer, moved on to New York and the Juilliard School. By then he had abandoned the 12-tone techniques he had been using in Chicago and preferred American composer like Aaron Copeland and William Schuman. By the time he was 23, Glass had studied with Vincent Persichetti, Darius Milhaud and William Bergsma. He had rejected serialism and preferred such maverick composers as Harry Partch, Ives, Moondog, Henry Cowell, Virgil Thompson, but he still had not found his own voice. Still searching, he moved to Paris and two years of intensive study under Nadia Boulanger. In Paris he was hired by a film-maker to transcribe

GLASS (cont.) the Indian music of Ravi Shankar in notation readable by French musicians and, in the process, discovered the techniques of Indian music. Glass promptly renounced his previous music and, after researching music in North Africa, India and the Himalayas, returned to New York and began applying Eastern techniques to his own work. By 1974, he had composed a large collection of new music, much of it for use by the theater company Mabou Mines (Glass was one of the co-founders of the company), and most of it composed for his own performing group, the Philip Glass Ensemble. This period culminated in Music in 12 Parts, a 3-hour summation of Glass' new music, and reached its apogee in 1976 with the Philip Glass/Robert Wilson opera Einstein on the Beach, the 4 1/2 hour epic now seen as a landmark in 20th century music-theater. Glass' output since Einstein has ranged from opera (Satyagraha, Akhnaten, The Making of the House of Usher, The Juniper Tree) to film (Koyaanisqatsi, Mishima, The Thin Blue Line, Powaqqatsi) to dance (A Descent into the Maelstrom, and In the Upper Room), and such unclassifiable theater pieces as The Photographer and 1000 Airplanes on the Roof, and numerous recordings. Among his recently completed works are Ìtaipu, a large-scale work for chorus and orchestra based on South American Indian legends, and Hydrogen Jukebox, a new work co-authored with Allen Ginsberg and Jerome Sirlin. Among his works-in-progress are Orphee, a chamber opera based on the film by Jean Cocteau and The Voyage, commissioned by the Metropolitan Opera for its 1992 season, and Through the Eye of the Raven, a collaboration with Robert Wilson.

RED GROOMS (VISUAL DESIGN) was born in Nashville, Tennessee. He has previously created commissioned set designs for plays by Kenneth Koch and Kenward Elmslie, as well as dances by Jacque d'Amboise. He is the recipient of many commissions and awards including: a public billboard for the Contemporary Museum of Art, Chicago, IL; a permanent environmental commission for the Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY; an outdoor sculpture for Northern Kentucky University, Highland Heights, KY; and a permanent environmental commission with Lysiane Luong for the American Museum of Moving Images, Astoria, NY. His awards include an Artists of the Year Award (1983), Art Teachers of New York, NYC; Brickie Award (1983), Lower Manhattan Cultural Council, NYC; Rhode Island School of Design President's Award (1985); National Arts Club Award (1986); Gold Medal Honor; New York Times Ten Best Illustrated Children's Books Award (1986); Governor's Award in the Arts (1986), State of Tennessee; and The Mayor's Awards of Honor for Art and Culture (1988), New York City. His work has been widely exhibited and is in public collections from Denver, Colorado to Little Rock, Arkansas and from Stockholm, Sweden to Caracas, Venezuela in such prestigious institutions as The Art Institute of Chicago, The Brooklyn Museum, Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Museum of Modern Art, The Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and the Whitney Museum of American Art. His work has been the focus of numerous one-man and group exhibitions from 1958 through 1992, including most recently a one-man show at New York's Marlborough Gallery. He has created live performances and films, and acted in films by Rudy Burckhardt, and Mike Kuchar. His latest projects include the set design for Chakra: A Celebration of India; Agricultural Building, a permanent environmental commission for the Des Moines Art Center; a revival presentation of The Burning Building and the premiere of Hot Water at Cabaret Voltaire in Torino, Italy.

SCOTT COHEN (YOUNG SAM) was last seen in Mississippi Crossing at Alice's Fourth Floor. Other New York credits include The Crucible directed by Gerald Freedman at the Roundabout, Lady and the Clarinet at River Arts Repertory, Servy N Bernice 4 Ever at the Provincetown Playhouse directed by Terry Kinney, Don't Blame Me at Angel Theatre directed by the late Ralph Marrero, Black-Eyed Brothers by Seth Rosenfeld at the Westbank Cafe and John Houseman Theatre and Cavalleria Rusticana directed by John Turturro. Williamstown Theatre Festival - The American Clock, Henry IV directed by Austin Pendleton, Passion directed by Arvis Brown, Mother Courage directed by Gerald Freedman and Oedipus directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos. Films include Many Wonders, Jacob's Ladder, The Mambo Kings and the upcoming Mac directed by John Turturro.

SCOTT CUNNINGHAM (ANGER I) grew up in Needham, MA and developed an interest in music and athletics at an early age. Scott earned a B.A. in English, worked in many aspects of the theater, and studied dance while at U. MASS/Amherst. After dancing in Boston, he moved to New York where he danced with Elisa Monte and Mark Morris. Scott joined the David Gordon Pick Up Company in 1986 and he has worked with Mr. Gordon in dance, television and theater. Most recently he appeared in David Gordon's Punch and Judy Get Divorced for PBS TV. Scott has an interest in recreation, the martial arts, and contact improvisation.

NORMA FIRE (DETECTIVE AND ONLY OLDEST CHILD) most recently played The Clown in David Gordon's Punch and Judy Get Divorced for PBS TV. Previously, she played Gertrude in Hamlet, Lady Sneerwell in The School for Scandal, and Abbess in The Comedy of Errors for North Carolina's Shakespeare Festival. She played Hippolyta, Puck and Peter Quince in A Midsummer Night's Dream for Southern Theatre, Minneapolis. In four seasons at Actors Theatre of St. Paul she performed major roles in eighteen plays including Noise Off!, Joe Egg, Uncle Vanya, Peg O' My Heart, Sherlock's Last Case, I Love You, I Love You Not, Interrogating the Nude, Not I, The American Dream, and Maria and the Angels. Her New York credits include roles in the Taming of the Shrew, Henry V and The Merry Wives of Windsor for Riverside Shakespeare, three understudies at New York Shakespeare Festival, and Macbeth at York Theatre.
